LOY YANG B EMISSIONS COMPLIANCE DATA AVAILABLE

Loy Yang B Power Station's compliance with daily air emissions limits as compared to its EPA operating licence is now publicly available.

Emissions data for Loy Yang B's continuously measured parameters can be found on its website <https://www.loyyangb.com.au/environmental-reporting/>.

Although Loy Yang B has always publicly reported its emissions in accordance with its regulatory obligations in a variety of annual reports and publications, the availability of a daily compliance status provides a new level of transparency, which has been a common topic of interest within the community for some time.

The publication of data is a new condition of the power station's EPA licence, which was reviewed and issued in March this year. It will consist of both a daily status of compliance and a more detailed monthly summary which will be available for download.

The website also contains links to Loy Yang B's current EPA licence conditions, a map of its premises and past Annual Performance Statements (APS).
